Alexandre Dumas (1802–1870) was one of the most famous and prolific French writers of the nineteenth century, producing some 250 books. Dumas is best known for his historical novels The Three Musketeers and The Count of Monte

Cristo, and he was among the first authors to fully exploit the possibilities of roman feuilleton, or “serial novel.” He is credited with revitalizing the historical novel in France.

John Bolen brings his extensive theater, film, and TV experience to audiobooks. Recent TV appearances include CIA: Masters of Deception on the Discovery Channel. Bolen’s many audiobook titles include The Call of the Canyon by Zane Grey and Mutiny of the Elsinore by Jack London.

ALEXANDRE DUMAS THE BLACK TULIP

A story of romantic love in Holland during the Renaissance, this historical novel describes the murder of John de Witte and his brother Cornelius at the hands of tyrants. And the black tulip? A symbol of justice and the end of oppression.

The tulip craze of seventeenth-century Holland has a dark side! Cornelius van Baerle, a wealthy but naïve tulip grower, finds himself entangled in the deadly politics of his time. Cornelius’s one desire is to grow the perfect black tulip. But after his godfather is murdered, he finds himself in prison, facing a death sentence. His jailer’s lovely daughter holds the key to his survival and his chance to produce the precious black blossom. Yet he has one more enemy to contend with!
